

I support media diversity

Re: Docket No. 02-277, the FCC's Biennial Review of broadcast mediaownership rules.

We ask that the FCC retain the current media ownership rules that exist at this time. These rules serve the public interest by limiting the market power of already huge companies in the broadcast industry.

The public interest will best be served by preserving current media-ownership rules.

The FCC has not held enough hearings on this matter so that all sides can be heard. It strongly appears that certain members of the FCC have listened only to the opinions of the very big media moguls. The FCC--a public agency--should be responsible enough to listen to all sides of the issue.
